ProRail is partner in RESTRAIL (FP7 EU programme to reduce trespasses and suicides) which started in 2011. I have been involved in this programme since the start as the programme manager suicide prevention of ProRail. I have contributed to nearly every work package in one way or the other during the last couple of years.

I have known Grigore since he joined RESTRAIL at the end of 2012. I have worked together with Grigore mostly in these final stages towards the end of RESTRAIL. He has been a driving force behind several deliverables in the programme. Specifically has he made his personal mark on the toolbox of measures as a final outcome of RESTRAIL. A toolbox (in a document as well as in an online version) which has already proven to be a success as a combination of measures put together for the first time in such a manner. And which is and will be of immense value to other railinfrastructure managers and railway undertakings in future.

I have found him to be very hard-working, focussed and meticulous in what he does and what he achieves. It became more and more clear to me what a driving force he is and has been for the programme in the last year. Going steady, focused on a clear destination, but in a modest and non-aggressive way, yet still extremely driven to achieve the best and the most. Grigore made me want to go the extra mile to provide all the information possible.

Not only does Grigore have a very pleasant personality, he is also very skilled at doing research and translating difficult information into an article or to an audience, which I have witnessed on several occasions. And I'm amazed at his various language skills (even Dutch!).

It is for these reasons that I highly recommend Grigore Havaraneanu. As far as I am concerned he is very eligible for receiving an award in the Young Researchers Awards 2014, I would even say 'first prize'. Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Yours sincerely,

Drs. A.M. van der Veer
